

NORTHCLIFF LAUNCHES NEW WEBSITE AND PROVIDES UPDATE ON CRITICAL MINERALS INITIATIVES

September 15, 2022 Vancouver, BC - Northcliff Resources Ltd. ("Northcliff" or the "Company") (TSX: NCF) is pleased to announce the launch of its new website: www.northcliffresources.com

Andrew Ing, Northcliff's CEO, states "We believe that the Sisson tungsten-molybdenum project ("Sisson Project") can be a significant player in the critical minerals supply chain as the world continues its push towards securing the necessary minerals and metals to power innovation and activity in manufacturing, technology and other sectors. The Sisson Project can be a key asset in meeting part of the global demand for tungsten and molybdenum. Both tungsten and molybdenum are listed as critical minerals in Canada, and tungsten in the United States of America ("US") and numerous other countries.

Canada and the US are implementing important critical minerals initiatives, such as funding support for qualified activities via certain policies and programs administered by the Critical Minerals Centre of Excellence (Natural Resources Canada) and the Defense Production Act Title III (US Department of Defense). Northcliff is in active discussions in pursuit of participation in these policies and programs, and related initiatives supported by both governments to meet the demand for future critical minerals requirements."
